No. 19: Phelps swims into Olympic history

LONDON—Michael Phelps lingered on the blocks, not wanting to make another shocking blunder. The 19th medal was his. All he had to do was avoid a DQ, then set off on what amounted to four victory laps.

Down and back, then down and back again, the roars getting louder with each stroke.

When Phelps touched the wall, he finally had gold at his fourth and final Olympic Games.

And a record for the ages.

Phelps swam into history with a lot of help from his American friends, taking down the last major record that wasn't his alone. He took the anchor leg for the US team in a gold medal-

Barriga exorcises ghost of Beijing debacle

By Artemio T. Engracia Jr.
News Editor

LONDON—It took Mark Anthony Barriga just 11 minutes on Tuesday to exorcise the ghost that had haunted Philippine sports since the debacle in the 2008 Olympic Games in Beijing.

With his decisive victory in the first round of boxing competitions in the 30th Olympic Games in London, the 19-year-old light flyweight single-handedly improved on the Philippines' performance in Beijing, where the hapless Filipinos hit rock bottom in the quadrennial Games.

The 15 Filipinos in Beijing failed to win a single match or advance to the next round in Beijing, a performance considered the worst by the Philippines in the history of the Olympics.

Bishops welcome Gloria to their cause

By Christian V. Esguerra and Jocelyn R. Uy

LIKE BATMAN in the hit movie "The Dark Knight Rises," former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo is emerging from the pits to help defuse fears of a population bomb.

Seven of Arroyo's allies had withdrawn as authors of the controversial reproductive health (RH) bill that the Catholic Church vehemently opposes.

As such, the Pampanga representative has become the darling of the Church hierarchy, some of whose prelates were gifted with SUVs when she was the President but unfortunately had to give them up following a Senate inquiry.

Wearing a neck brace and familiar support, Arroyo showed up for the first time in a year—the past eight months under hospital arrest on election sabotage charges—in the House on Tuesday.

The former President, who is being treated for a rare neck ailment, described her appearance there as a "dry run" for the crucial vote on Aug. 7 on the RH bill. She said she would vote against the Malacañang-backed measure.

Senate told SBMA execs in on rice smuggling

By Norman Bordadora

A SENATE inquiry was told yesterday that certain officials of the Subic Bay Metropolitan Authority (SBMA), a free port zone locator and an Indian rice supplier connived in the attempt to smuggle almost P500 million worth of rice in April.

Executives of Metroeastern Trading Corp., the free port locator to whom the shipment of 420,000 50-kilogram bags of rice was consigned, admitted during the investigation conducted by the agriculture committee that an SBMA executive had asked their help to keep the rice in their

DPWH chief warns against extortionists

By Jerry E. Esplanada

PUBLIC Works Secretary Rogelio Singson has warned against extortionists using his name for unauthorized Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH)-sponsored golf tournaments and other fake fundraising activities.

"Should anyone knock on your door, send e-mails or text messages for the purpose of asking donations for a bogus DPWH golf tournament or any fundraising project, please report to DPWH telephone number 536-5477, or text to 2920 or contact our Call Center Hotline 165-02," the DPWH public information division said in an advisory.

In a statement, Singson yesterday said he does "not allow anybody to solicit funds or get favorable considerations either personally or through e-mail, text messages or letters."

The DPWH head said he had personally received reports that some unscrupulous individuals have been dropping his name and that of the DPWH to solicit sponsorships for nonexistent golf tournaments, among other supposed fundraising activities.

The same individuals, he said, have been targeting project contractors and other people doing business with the DPWH.

Singson noted that "with national road projects being implemented according to approved plans and specifications by honest, equipped and qualified contractors with closer inspection and monitoring by civil society groups, some unscrupulous individuals are now thinking of other ways to make easy money from contractors and other business people."

"Our commitment is to ensure the quality and safety of our national road network by upgrading and maintaining the roads properly, not to sponsor golf tournaments," he emphasized.

The DPWH has also no involvement in attempts by some powerful individuals acting as fixers to solicit projects and facilitate budget releases for DPWH projects, he said.

"Please do not entertain fixers or brokers for projects that are anyway included in our regular budget," said Singson.

PAL's new inflight menu features first-rate int'l cuisines

PHILIPPINE AIRLINES recently unveiled a restyled menu, created by renowned guest chefs, that features a variety of international cuisines reflecting the global profile of the flag carrier's passengers.

The changes are part of PAL's thrust to beef up its customer interactions under its new management, led by conglomerate San Miguel Corporation.

The new cuisines, which kick off the "PAL Master Chef" series of the airline's catering operations unit, are anchored on the exceptional skills of its five guest chefs, representing different culinary specialties.

Leading the new roster is Fernando Aracama, advocate of Filipino gastronomy and executive chef of the eponymous Aracama at The Fort in Taguig City, which recently opened to rave reviews.

For PAL's domestic and international services, Aracama will create Filipino menus that evoke the rich ethnic palates of the islands, but with a modern twist.

His signature dish, inasal, or singhal (grilled chicken in lemongrass) with Ashitaba (annatto garlic oil fried rice) and [illegible] salad, is a throwback to his childhood years in Bacolod, where his mother's home cooking sparked his interest in the culinary arts.

CHEF Sansanee Prangsiri

PLA LUI SUAN with Tamarind Sauce

For fans of Western cuisine on PAL's international services, both chef and restaurateur William "Billy" King will handle the kitchen chores. A longtime resident of Manila and former executive chef of Hotel InterContinental's Prince Albert Rotisserie,

CHEF Billy King; at right, US Braised Beef

King revolutionized the local fine-dining scene in the 1990s when he opened Le Souffle in Makati and Le Chef Manor in Baguio.

King's contribution to the PAL menu—slow-cooked US Angus beef with balsamic jus, horseradish cream with potted carrot and potato, and leek confit—bears the refined, haute-cuisine style that made him famous.

With Asian routes making up over two-thirds of PAL's international network, the flag carrier has also brought on board three Asian chefs.

The ever-popular Chinese menu, served on the airline's China services, will be prepared by veteran Malaysian chef Yee Cheong Yan.

Formerly executive chef with the Shangri-La group of hotels and currently the culinary director of leading hospitality school Enderun Colleges in Taguig, Yee has over 30 years of experience in kitchens and classrooms from Malaysia to Switzerland, from China to the United States.

His trademark dish is braised beef short ribs with honey peppercorn sauce. Yee marinates his US beef short ribs with a soy sauce mix and slow cooks it for 48 hours to ensure tenderness. The sauce is then prepared from the marinade, combined with honey, shallots and peppercorn, to complement the meat.

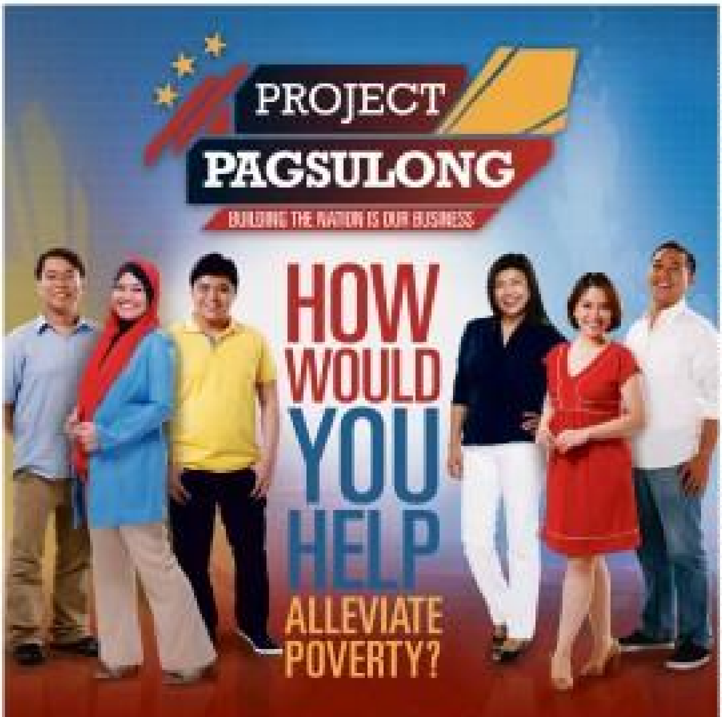

For travelers on PAL's Japan services, the task of pleasing their palates is taken up by Masahiro Mitsumoto. The executive chef of Kicho, the famed Japanese restaurant of Traders Hotel Manila, brings 27 years of experience to the task. Mitsumoto is the only professional chef in the Philippines licensed to prepare fugu, the exotic but hazardous delicacy made from toxin-laden puffer fish that is nevertheless one of the most celebrated dishes in Japanese cuisine.

For PAL, Mitsumoto has created buta kakuni, organic pork belly steeped in bonito flakes soup stock, and dark and light soy sauce garnished with soybeans and flavored with yellow Japanese mustard.

Finally, a new addition to the PAL menu is Thai cuisine, overseen by one of its best exponents, Khun Sansanee Prangsiri, executive chef of Dusit Thani Manila's flagship restaurant Benjarong.

Steeped in both classical Thai cooking as well as international cuisines, Prangsiri offers her signature dish, pla lui suan mamuang (deep-fried fish fillet in tamarind sauce)—deep-fried fish fillet enhanced by minced pork, mushrooms, spring onion and bell pepper, with zesty tamarind sauce.

The new menus will be gradually introduced on PAL flights starting April 2011. These will run in varying cycles on the flag carrier's intercontinental, Asian regional and domestic services until 2013.

very savory and different. It had the usual ingredients along with thin strips of lemon rind and topped with toasted, crushed nuts.

Another must-try is the wild mushroom and spinach salad.

For the main course, we had the Grass Fed Salmon, Tuna arugula and Risotto, Herb crusted lamb cutlets, homemade Chorizo and Potato Orchietta, lamb Bolognese and spinach artichoke Risotto.

I enjoyed best the Steak Risotto topped with [illegible], the lamb cutlet with Gremolata, and the Pasta with cream and fresh lemon, which had a clean and refreshing taste.

The artichoke risotto was also exceptional. It was topped with grilled artichoke and flavored with mildly spicy arugula. Here, cheese is well-made with just the right "doneness" of Italian arborio rice.

Beautifully plated

I also sampled a beautifully plated trio of Scallops, Spatchcock and lobster. It was so wonderfully made, I almost didn't want to touch it.

The homemade Chorizo and potato orecchiette, meanwhile, was mildly spicy, with a deep red rich tomato sauce. And from the old menu of Lu, chef Sias retained the best-selling thick pork chops.

For dessert, we had lemon glazed Yogurt Cheesecake, Dark Chocolate cake, Butterscotch apple pie, Lulu Chocolate Gold, guava sugar-free and Mango madness. Without exception, all are worth ordering. Immensely fattening but very good!

Lulu just jumped right into my "Best Restaurants in Manila" list. Comes highly recommended!

Happy Eating!

Cinemalaya 2012's colorful conclusion

Controversies, technical glitches, nature's wrath mar closing night

Why Manila visit is Jessica's big goal

He compared 'The Beatles' experience to that of Cinemalaya.

"She (Cinemalaya) was born when the local movie scene was drowning in [illegible] films," Cajucagus said. "She was a breath of life. We have seemed to expose our baby to other life challenges ... (She) has now created a [illegible] among the young and seasoned filmmakers. The quality of this year's festival is proof of this."

Announcement

The only announcement Cajucagus made that night was that Cinemalaya will be shouldering the travel expenses of [illegible] (invited to the Rome International Film Festival in Italy in November.

In his welcome address, Cinemalaya Foundation president Nes Jardin admitted that "the road to where we are now had not been paved with roses all the way."

Jardin resigned as festival director in the wake of the controversy surrounding the disqualification of Emerson Reyes' "MNL 143" in May.

Robbie Tan has reportedly also resigned as monitoring committee head of the festival.

"We've had to contend with problems and issues of financial stability both for the film production and the festival, technical and logistical concerns, marketing and distribution problems, and even issues about artistic expression and freedom," Jardin said. "But Cinemalaya has forged ahead, in full force, despite all the roadblocks."

Jardin announced that the festival's audience increased by 12 percent from 58,000 in 2011 to this year's count of 65,000.

"Next year, we will endeavor to add more cinemas and locations, and who knows, perhaps five years from now, we will be covering practically the whole of Metro Manila just like the MMFF (Metro Manila Film Festival)," he said.

Aside from three venues of the CCP, Cinemalaya films were screened at the Greenbelt Mall in Makati City in 2011. They were likewise shown at the TriNoma Mall in Quezon City starting this year.

'Posas' in cinemas

LAWRENCE Fajardo's "Posas" (Shackled), best picture winner in the Directors' showcase section of this year's Cinemalaya Philippine Independent Film Festival, is being screened in commercial cinemas until Aug. 7. Starting "Posas" opened in Trinoma Cinema 3, SM Megamall Cinema 11 and SM North The Block Cinema 4. A searing critique of the country's judicial system, "Posas" also won best supporting actor for Art Acuña, who played a crooked cop in the indie drama. —Bayani San Diego Jr.

Tanghalang Nicanor Abelardo (Main Theater) in Pasay City started almost an hour late from the 7 p.m. call time, due to heavy rains and flooding caused by Tropical Storm "Gener."

The program, almost three hours long, was marred by technical problems. Actor Jonathan Tadioan, who hosted the show with singer-actress Cherie Gil, kept complaining about his Teleprompter.

Award-winning writer Ricky Lee, who was also a jury member, apologized for the "kinks in the show's script."

TONYBOY Cojuangco and Gretchen Barretto

Explanations

Lee, as well as National Artist for Literature Bienvenido Lumbera, had to go up the stage to explain why the jury had decided to give only one acting award to four female actresses—Ina Cabrera, Sally Ann Fanes, Agot Isidro and Janice de Belen—in Jose Javier Reyes' "Mga Mumunting Lihim."

He told the Inquirer after the show: "We decided not to give separate awards for best actress and best supporting actress. Instead, we gave one to the ensemble for their performance."

Lumbera sat as chair of the jury composed of Lee, Mo Zamora, Tanghalang Pilipino chair and UP College of Mass Communication dean Rolando Tolentino, Malaysian filmmaker U-Wei Bin Haji Saari and Indian movie and TV director Sudhir Mishra.

Lee also explained that Mes de Guzman's "Diablo," which bagged the best picture award in the New Breed category, won because "of the director's unique approach to a material that's already familiar to us."

"(De Guzman) lent a new style to the simple story of a wife and a mother to five kids handling a death in the family. It is evident even in the cinematography and acting," Lee stressed.

Lawrence Fajardo's "Posas," which won best picture in the Showcase category, got more raves from the foreign jurors, said Lee. "They liked it because it shows the Filipino way of life but not in a manner that's overdramatized and melodramatic."

Playing safe

Asked to react to comments that the jurors played it safe by distributing awards to most of the entries, Lee explained: "This could not be avoided. The recipients of the individual awards were all outstanding. The results were based on the decision of not just one person but a whole group."

OBITUARIES

Man is born broken,

...PARAPHRASE FROM ALEXANDER SOLZHENITSYN

JAMES ATTAWAY NICHOLS III

MARCH 7, 1951 TO JULY 21, 2012

Will be missed by his family and friends.

Wife Jenny and children JIM, 32; JASPER, 18; MAICHAIL APOLLO, 9; ISABELLA PAIGE EVELYN, 4;

His mom EVELYN; sister JAN LARSON; and cousin BETSY WHITE,

Request the thoughtful reader to pause and reflect on a good man's life, and for his friends to ponder on his good work.

Nick worked in the Philippine power sector starting in the mid-1990's and was a leading light in rural electrification and eventually in renewable power. In 2005, after a brief period back with Navigant Consulting in California, he returned for good to the Philippines, and founded Asian Energy Advisors, developing an impressive list of clients in a very short time.

Nick died unexpectedly on July 21 in St. Luke's Medical Center, Quezon City.

A secular program in his honor will be held 5-8 pm, Saturday, August 4, at the dining hall of Balay Kalinaw, University of the Philippines, Diliman, Quezon City.

Please omit flowers. Food, wine, and anecdotes welcome.

"Now I am about to go the way of all the earth. You know with all your heart and soul that not one of all the good promises the LORD your God gave you has failed. Every promise has been fulfilled; not one has failed." – Joshua 23:14
